Market Prospect

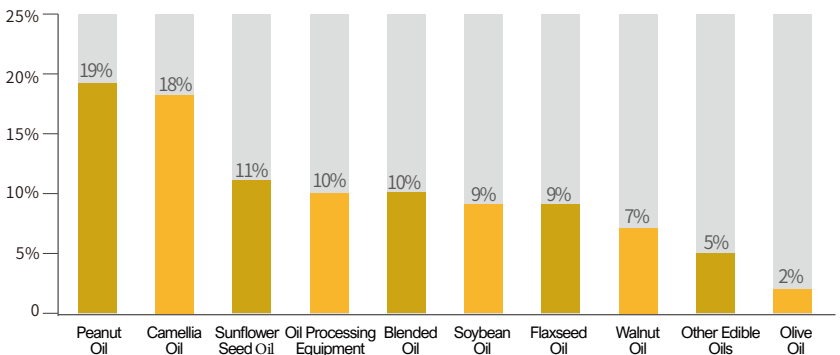

China's vast consumer base and rich food culture have created a diverse edible oil market. In 2024, China's consumption reached 37.35 million tons, a 1% year-on-year increase. Common oils like peanut, soybean, and rapeseed have shown stable growth, while nutrient-rich emerging oils are the fastest-growing.

The increasing health awareness has driven edible oil consumption into a healthier phase. The market is shifting toward "eating less oil, eating better oil, and eating for health." Camellia oil, olive oil, sunflower seed oil, and flaxseed oil have maintained high growth rates over the past 5-10 years. As health consciousness deepens, demand for healthy oils will continue to rise, offering significant development opportunities for health-focused edible oils.

Why exhibit

- ◆ The exhibition leverages a wide network of professional buyers both domestically and internationally, along with strong support from leading industry associations and authorities. It aims to foster efficient communication and collaboration across the entire industry chain.
- ◆ A dedicated buyer-matching program is tailored for exhibitors. By identifying procurement needs in advance, the program facilitates targeted business matchmaking and in-depth negotiations during the show.
- ◆ A series of forums and seminars will focus on key industry topics, inviting leading experts and executives to share the latest trends, market insights, and emerging opportunities—creating a valuable platform for learning, networking, and exchange.
- ◆ To promote and recognize innovation in the global edible oil sector, a special awards ceremony will be held to showcase breakthrough products and highlight the industry's achievements, driving collective growth and mutual success.
